Company Fills Critical Needs

Have you been putting off buying that new computer? Do you dread technology rather than embrace it? Would you be excited to have someone give you one-on-one training on computer software, hardware, networks, the Internet, etc.? Have you said to yourself “I want to take advantage of new technology including the Internet for my business, if only I had the resources!” or “Technology moves so fast, I wish I had someone to help me maintain my business’ use of it!”

If you answered yes to any of these questions, JPW Solutions is your remedy. Whether you are a small business with many technology needs or home user in need of technical support with your computer software, we have a solution for you. JPW Solutions offers a complete range of strategy, project management, design, development and training services.

Two hours for the price of one for new customers if you mention this newsletter!

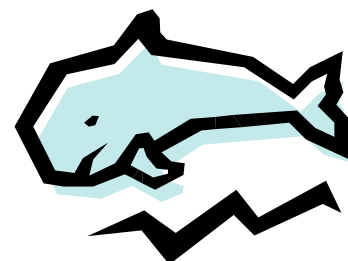

Hot Tip:

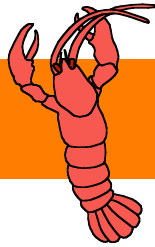

Replacing/upgrading older computers and upgrading your network will be far more efficient and lead to less maintenance issues - this investment will more than pay for itself, saving you time and money over the short-term!

Our Methodology

JPW Solutions works diligently to create technological solutions for the small business or home user. Close personal attention to your needs is our focus. We will get the job done in the most efficient manner - whether on-site (at your office or home) or working from our office - this produces quality results at a cost-savings to you.

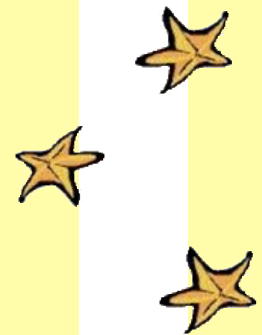

For the small business and home user, we strive to establish a partner relationship with our clients while working towards project goals – we are not happy unless you are 100% comfortable with technology and its role in your home or business. We are here to help you take advantage and succeed in the new digital age!

By getting things done using efficient project management methodology, we have developed a system that has proven successful time after time.

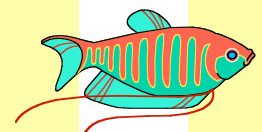

We specialize in servicing the closely held business, professional firm, and individual home user.

Hot Tip:

Did you know that you can breathe new life into your older computer at a minimal cost by simply adding more Memory (RAM)? We can help you with this!

Our Capabilities

One of the most important factors when selecting a technology/training partner is the capability of the firm you select. We have a broad range of experiences that have proven extremely successful. We are fully versed in the many different technology challenges that arise for the small business and home user.

Our company president has over 10 years of direct technology experience - from being an Internet

Coordinator/Webmaster for a Fortune 500 company, to teaching/training high school students and adults on computer technology, to serving as project manager for a major Internet/Extranet project for a prominent life insurance company - a broad range of experience is brought to the table.

JPW Solutions has the solution for you!

Why JPW Solutions...

Realizing that you need help in moving into the digital age, or planning to create a web presence, or to provide extended services to your web audience, or to create an effective network, etc., are all important decisions. Whether you are new to technology, want to create a first time web site, public Internet or private Intranet or Extranet, you should retain a firm that provides enough depth and range to make your selection a one-time decision.

JPW Solutions provides total solutions for your business and the home user - providing answers, recommendations, design and development, training, and integration.
